Stockade Botanical Park

These delightful gardens have been designed to provide a memorable experience that is filled with seasonal colours, wonderful fragrances and a variety of birdlife.

It is a tranquil and relaxing park setting that is spread over more than five hectares, offering many special features including a 12 metre high waterfall that tumbles over the cliff of an old, landscaped quarry. The former quarry is now the site of a special sensory garden that is filled with colourful and aromatic plants.

The paths and walking areas that meander through the park provide access to a wide variety of garden beds with a colourful array of plantings. A feature of the park is the Arboretum. This area has around 300 species of eucalypts and native plants that are set in groupings for easy identification, providing an excellent educational feature for both students and gardeners alike. The park's central garden beds contain a selection of evergreen, deciduous and ornamental trees and shrubs, while the network of walking paths allow access to stands of native trees and shrubs.
